CITY TRUSTEES

Numerous Communications Received —No Action Regarding Annexation Election which will Come Off as Advertised

Trustees all present. The usual list of demands presented and referred.

Wm. W. K. Thompson addressed the board on the merits of the Heenan Refuse Destructor as a means of caring for garbage. The report of city treasurer for February was received. The street superintendent was instructed to close Fourth street from Adams street to Verdugo road at his discretion for repairs. The city attorney was instructed to prepare a form of notice for use in closing streets. He was also instructed to prepare a resolution protesting against the proposed legislation whereby cities may be consolidated. A communication was received from the Los Angeles Arbor Day association and filed. A communication was received from John N. Metcalf, Esq., regarding proposed Second street tunnel in Los Angeles.

A communication was received suggesting a tax levy for the purpose of making an exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915; the same was referred to a committee with the president of the board as chairman to take under advisement. The clerk was instructed to prepare for the straw ballot at the election of March 17th. An ordinance establishing the grade of Louise street from First street to Doran street, passed first and second reading. Trustee Coker offered resolution approving map of Tract No. 1171 and accepting avenues, alleys, etc., shown on same, and it was adopted. The city assessor authorized to have the tax statements electrotyped at a cost not to exceed eight dollars.

A committee from Tropico was present and were heard in reference to the proposed annexation election advertised for the 21st inst. The committee stated that while the court had ruled that the Tropico incorporation election proceedings were regular and consequently Tropico had been duly incorporated, there would be an appeal made from the decision of Judge Wilbur and in view of the possibility of the Supreme Court overruling his action, those favoring annexation to Glendale desired that the election come off as advertised. After debating the matter informally during recess the trustees took no action in regard to it, leaving the election to come off on Tuesday next as called.

PARENT-TEACHER FEDERATION OF GLENDALE.

On Saturday evening, March 11th, the Parent-Teacher Federation held its last session for this school year. The meeting was beyond a doubt the success that was promised.

The address, dealing with "The Child and the Home," by Dr. Thomas B. Stowell, a member of the University of Southern California, was most interesting and universally appreciated. The address was followed by a musical program consisting of several selections by the high school orchestra which renders unusual music for a school organization, and is always enjoyed by those fortunate enough to hear it. Miss Viola Yorba also sang a delightful song in her own charming manner, while one of the best numbers of the evening was the music furnished by a trio, consisting of violin, cello and piano, played by Julius Krantz, Dana Burket and Mrs. Gibson. Each selection was most thoroughly enjoyed by the audience as was evidenced by its hearty applause.

DELIGHTFUL DOINGS OF THE D. D. BUNCH.

At last, we have something absolutely unique in the illustrious annals of Glendale society. It was a christening party given last Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lynch at their beautiful home on Damasco Court.

Now don't be mistaken; don't be misled. The handsome daughter in the Lynch family was christened months ago. They have not purchased a new 1911 model shotproof battleship but a magnificent dining room table with many beautifully carved legs, Mrs. Lynch had decorated it with all sorts of delectable dainties a la Casa Verdugo. At about 7:00 p. m. the members of the order began to assist Mr. and Mrs. Lynch in dismantling it. Promptly at 8:30 Mr. Dominy broke the glass of sparkling "Consolidated" water over the bow and the deed was done. Those present were unanimous in saying that it was the most brilliant affair of the kind ever undertaken in Glendale or even in Tropico or Eagle Rock, cities of the sixth class.

After christening came the regular literary program. The main event was the debate between Mr. Hunchberger and Mr. Howe on the question Resolved, That "Cedar Sweep" has done more for humanity than "Zenith Stove Polish." The judges are still out. Mr. Lynch spoke briefly on the "Pleasures of a street superintendent in moist weather." Mesdames Howe and Truscott delighted the bunch with some elegant handpicked solos.

The evening closed early in the morning with the usual game.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS CIRCUIT COMPANY SUED.

Mr. Frank Campbell has brought suit against the directors of this corporation to recover the sum of $6500 secured by false representations. It will be remembered that this concern came to Glendale about four years ago, being represented principally by its secretary, Samuel B. Mock, who promoted the scheme so successfully that he induced a number of Glendale and Tropico people to subscribe for stock, they depending very largely on the fact that the directors consisted of such well-known Los Angeles business men as Heilman, Baruch, Newmark and others. Gas was to be brought to Glendale immediately and several hundred feet of pipe were buried in Glendale streets, but never put in connection with real gas. The case is an interesting one from the fact that it is one in which it is sought to hold directors responsible for the acts of their agents, not allowing them to go free on the plea of ignorance. Mock took the good money secured from the subscribers here and started a campaign of promotion in other places, his advertisement pointing ("with pride" presumably) to what (not who) had been done in Glendale. The case came up before Judge Monroe who took it under advisement.

PRIZE ESSAY ENTERTAINMENT.

The prize essay entertainment will be given at the High School Auditorium on Saturday, March 25. Particulars will be given in next week's NEWS.

Mrs. Martha W. Morris is convalescing at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Stanley on Everett street after a fortnight's stay at the sanitarium.

ELECTIONS

Two in Sight—Bond Election Today Annexation to be Voted on Next Tuesday

The bond election comes off today. While there is considerable interest manifested in it, publicly there has not been much agitation. The probability is that about fifty per cent of the voters will register their preference. The amount of bonds called for ($18,000) is generally loked upon as not a very serious matter as the present indebtedness of the city is only $65,000, and the investment of a few thousand dollars in real estate which is bound to advance in value cannot be called an extravagance. There promises to be more of a struggle over the site for the proposed city hall than over the straight question of bonds and it cannot be said that either party has much the advantage and the straw vote is likely to be a pretty close one. We state once more the propositions:

Proposition No. 1.

Lots northwest corner Fourth and Jackson, 150 feet on Fourth street and 185 feet on Jackson, price $9100. Mr. Ambrosini, owner of one of the lots, agrees to donate $500 to the city in the event of this site being selected and agrees further to build on one or both of the opposite corners which he owns. It is proposed if this site is selected to erect thereon a city hall as soon as possible and a public library when practicable, Carnegie or municipal.

Proposition No. 2.

Lot northwest corner Fourth and Howard streets, frontage on Fourth street 93 feet, on Howard 142 feet—this for the city hall—price $6777.50; also

Three lots northwest corner Fifth and Kenwood, 150 feet square, price $3500, this for library site. Both of the Fourth street proposed sites have an alley on west side.

IN THE LOCAL COURT.

Before Judge Whomes in the recorder's court last Friday was heard the case of the Valley Lumber Yard versus R. Gilhousen and wife in which plaintiff sued for judgment on a note given for $270.60. The defendants claimed that there was no consideration given. Mr. MacGowan of the Los Angeles firm of MacGowan and Haas, was attorney for the plaintiff, and Sidney Dell, Esq., for the defendant. The case was made interesting for the auditors by several passages at arms between the attorneys, the counsel for the defendant charging conspiracy between the plaintiff, his attorney and the contractor to defraud the defendants. The recorder ruled that it was a plain case of a suit to recover on a promisory note and gave judgment for plaintiff in full amount asked.

THE ANNEXATION ELECTION.

Will be held according to call on the 21st. When the injunction suit came up before Judge Wilbur Monday last he decided that the Tropico incorporation was legal and dismissed the injunction proceedings. Attorney Haas immediately gave notice of an appeal. Under these circumstances there is nothing to be done but to proceed with the election. Should the decision of the voters be adverse to annexation that would of course be an end of the matter. Should the decision be for annexation, it would amount to nothing except in the event of the Tropico election finally being declared to be invalid, in which case the eastern part of Tropico would immediately upon that decision being rendered become a part of Glendale.

DEMAND GOOD FOR ACREAGE.

Messrs. Parker and Sternberg, agents for the Lankershim lands, report that the demand for acreage in the neighborhood of the Van Nuys town site is very good. They are in close touch with the developments being made in that section and are enthusiastic as to its future. Already many fine residences and several business structures are being erected, miles of street are being rapidly improved, including the wide boulevard which is being planted to trees and ornamental plants. Work is going ahead rapidly on the new electric line through Cahuenga Pass and completion is only a matter of two or three months.

CHARMING DISPLAY.

Delightful beyond measure is the display of spring millinery in the shop of Mrs. C. H. Eudemiller, at 405 Brand boulevard. Here are the things dear to the hearts of women, and every woman will enjoy receiving them, not only in the light of personal adornment, but as works of art, for they are indeed beautiful.

In the show windows, severely simple but very dainty in their setting, are, among others, four hats. It is impossible to say which is the handsomest. A strong appeal to the young girl would be the large, drooping white hat, fashioned of lace, the broad brim bound with white satin. A low crown is circled by a soft wreath of white aigrettes; an ornament of pale pink adds the necessary touch of color to make an exquisite creation. More stately but equally as lovely is a large hat of two-toned hemp braid, yellow beneath and white above, which bears as its only ornaments a band of gold and a bird of paradise in natural colors, which is a shading from cream white to a decided yellow.

Quaintly simple is still another hat of the two-toned hemp, a delicate brown beneath and white above, with a large rolling brim. Around the crown is a wreath of what appears to be ripened grass heads, from which modest wild flowers peep every now and then. Contrast is obtained by a splash of coal-colored velvet.

Simple but very rich is the one entirely of gold net, its brim bound with black velvet and ornamented with but one bunch of lback grapes and their foliage.

Inside, the shoproom itself is lovely with its decorations of smilax and huge armfuls of the most beautiful roses and maidenhair ferns.

And here are more and more hats. It would be impossible to describe them all, and almost as impossible to decide which to describe. Very striking is a creation of white braid with a black facing, which bears two sweeping willow plumes, with, beneath the brim, a cluster of crimson rosebuds to rest against the hair.

Another beautiful hat is a very large one of black grenadine, with a crown of acordion-pleated pink net and a single pale pink rose drooping over the brim.

Not so striking, but perfect in its harmony of coloring, is the one in soft shades of gray, surmounted by a wreath of gray velvet poppies and having a color note of burnt orange and yellow ochre.

Perfectly stunning is the hat of a peculiar soft shade of brown in a fine straw weave, trimmed with a touch of brown velvet and a mammoth butterfly of gold gauze with brown velvet spotted wings, apparently on the verge of taking flight.

Then there is a Frenchy creation of black lace, with a handsome willow plume and a wreath of pink rosebuds; a very large, floppy Leghorn, with a huge butterfly bow of ecru Spanish lace, a touch of black, and a suggestion of pink; also a pale gray Napoleon shape, with willow plume shaded in grays, and an ornament of pearls; it is exquisite. There are many, many others, all either dainty, beautiful or striking, usually combining all three of these qualities.

Aside from the trimmed hats, there are shapes of all kinds, colors and descriptions, only waiting to be decorated with the beautiful French flowers and ornaments which are there in profusion.

Last, but not least, are the beautiful, graceful plumes. Just imagine the grace of a plume a yard wide and thirty-two inches long! Everything is well worth viewing, and although, perhaps, you cannot have the prettiest hat there, you will at least enjoy seeing them all, if only for their grace and beauty.

ADDS TO ITS EQUIPMENT.

The Bank of Glendale has been adding to its conveniences a new double action Burroughs counting machine which is a marvel of mechanical accomplishment. In place of the single columns of discs, the columns are double enabling the operator to run up side by side the two sides of an account, or as in bank work making it possible to give the old and new balances side by side. In addition to this the number of each item can also be recorded. The machine is electrically connected and instead of pulling back a lever after each group of figures, it is only necessary to press a button. President Vesper claims that it adds another "thinker" to the force.

THE WEATHER

Sunshine Again—Some Slight Damage by Washouts

Wednesday and Thursday of last week were rainy and rain also fell during portions of Friday and Saturday, measuring for those days, 2.96 inches by the gauge of Mr. H. C. Bartlett, making the total for the season 19.04. Clear weather came with Sunday and the mildness of temperature proved very acceptable after ten days of dampness.

The high water during the last days of the week did some damage along the Verdugo wash, but Providence turned the moisture off before the conditions became serious, in which this section was highly favored as some other parts of Southern California suffered considerably. In Verdugo canyon, the approach to the recently constructed county oridge was washed away, causing a total stoppage of travel over that road. In connection with this we note that Supervisor Fridham has been sued by Mr. Lanterman of La Canada who asserts that he has been damaged to the extent of $3000 by failure to get his oranges to the railroad, assertion being made that the supervisor failed to have the road repaired when necessary.

The culvert put in by the Pacific Electric last year on Brand boulevard at Arden avenue was nearly all taken out by the high water but by prompt action temporary repairs were made so that there was little or no delay to cars. On Arden avenue west of Central the wash cut into the bank somewhat on the south side in the neighborhood of the laundry and the barn of the laundry was undermined by the stream. The approaches to the new bridge erected by the highway commission on San Fernando road at West Glendale were badly cut into but not taken away. The bridge on Louise street which was also put in last year was left high and dry with twenty feet of the approach taken away. Altogether the Verdugo Wash acted in such a way as to remind the people in its vicinity of its ability to "do things" and bridge builders and others may well take notes and shape their future actions accordingly. At no time during the storm was there a heavy rainfall for more than a few minutes at a time to which fortunate circumstance is due the fact that the damage was slight.

REAL ESTATE.

G. W. Woodward has sold a lot on Kenwood street near Third to David Francy, price $675.

Mary E. Harn sold to Wm. A. Burns a lot on Isabel street above Third.

J. P. Yates sold to H. D. Lockwood a lot in Glendale Valley View tract.

Isabel J. Rutherford sold to H. J. Chambers Lot 9, Block Glendale boulevard tract.

Edwards & Wildey report nearly all of the Haines tract on Verdugo road above Ninth street sold off in half-acre and acre lots.

Scholls canyon, which has been owned by Dr. Scholl of Los Angeles for the past thirty years and consists of the easterly branch of Sycamore canyon heading up toward Eagle Rock, has been sold to a syndicate of Los Angeles and Eagle Rock people whose present plans are unknown but who will undoubtedly do something very soon in the way of developing this beautiful property which comprises several hundred acres and is one of the most attractive natural resorts in the vicinity.

It is understood that the Fred Verdugo property in Verdugo Canyon consisting of 125 acres of land, partly hill, has been sold to a Glendale syndicate.

J. F. McClellan has contract for erection of story and half eight-room residence on First street near Central for Frank Methin, to cost $2500.

In Tropico, Mrs. Mary Ayers has let contract for the building of a six-room cottage on Palmer avenue west of her present residence, cost $2200.

W. G. Black will erect a seven-room bungalow on Park avenue near Brand, Swiss Chalet style of architecture.

John T. Kirkham is building for a recent arrival from the East on Palmer avenue near Cetral, a five-room residence to cost $2000.

THE EIGHT HOUR LAW FOR WOMEN.

The Griffen eight-hour bill for women passed the state senate by a vote of 34 to 5. Among the five voting against it we find the names of Hurd and Thompson of Los Angeles. Senator Wright led the opposition to the measure, voting in the affirmative in order to move a reconsideration, which when taken up did not materially change the result. The measure is a piece of ill considered legislation which will benefit neither man nor woman with the possible exception of the men who succeed some of the women who have employment now but will not have it for long after the law becomes effective. The NEWS congratulates Senators Hurd and Thompson and regrets that we cannot connect with them the names of Hewitt and Gates. The position of the latter is difficult to understand as he opposed the bill with his usual ability and energy only to vote for it at the finish.

UNPOPULAR—BUT!

The letter written by President Taft to retiring Secretary Ballinger will certainly go far toward restoring the latter to the favorable consideration of his countrymen. Not because Mr. Taft is president of the United States will the regard he expresses for the secretary of the interior have great weight, but because the people of this country have confidence in the president as an honest man, know him to be of judicial temperament, skilled in the sifting of evidence, and to be in possession of all the facts in the case. Against the opinion of such high and eminently qualified authority, what weight can be given to the opinion of the muck-raking magazines and of that too large class of well-meaning citizens who daily sit in judgment on the acts of public men and too often condemn them solely on the evidence of irresponsible newspapers whose testimony consists in inuendo and denunciation? Certainly the case against Mr. Ballinger has never been established; neither Pinchot nor Glavis have proved to be witnesses of unimpeachable judgment, however honest in their intentions; the story of the latter particularly being very disappointing as far as it pretended to furnish any real evidence. The fact that President Taft resolutely pursues the course which he believes to be right and is not swerved in expression or act by the question of popularity, in other words, that he "does not play to the gallery," should endear him to the most thoughtful of his fellow citizens.

Had he declared his belief in Ballinger's guilt we should have unhesitatingly accepted his verdict, just as we do now when as the court of last resort he declares him innocent.

PROVIDE A WATERWAY.

At the meeting of city trustees Monday evening last the street superintendent was instructed to close Fourth street at his discretion between Adams street and Verdugo road, and as a consequence that thoroughfare has been closed for the past two or three days to enable it to "dry up."

The portion of Fourth street referred to was covered by flood waters because the natural course of the water along the Childs Tract line is blocked up by a street curb and a private concrete wall, and the water during a rain storm is forced back westward to Adams street where it does not naturally belong. For years the city authorities have permitted private land owners to have their way about this storm water regardless of the public welfare. One board of trustees succeeded another with a constantly changing personnel, but always the result has been the same, this storm water has been diverted from its natural course one winter after another because certain property owners "objected" to its following the natural course. The present superintendent of streets and his predecessor have both endeavored to persuade interested owners to get together and allow the water to pass along their property lines, but without success. We understand that there is a real prospect just now that some satisfactory agreement may be arrived at. It would seem to a disinterested observer that the limit has been reached in this matter and that it should now be brought to a conclusion. Had the road been opened along the Childs Tract line as was attempted a year or so ago the matter would have been easy of solution; the street could have been improved with a view to carrying the occasional storm water and no one would have been injured, but as that project failed the city should use its power in the premises and see to it that the general public should be no longer deprived of the use of the street nor property along Fourth street be injured. As for the proposed necessary water way along the Childs Tract line, it follows as a necessary consequence that any private property owner who may happen to be injured by the use of their property for the public use should be fully r compensed.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET.

The most encouraging feature of the real estate market locally and probably elsewhere at present, is the fact that the most of the lots being sold are purchased by home builders and are not changing hands on a purely speculative basis. Southern California realty is something that there is a legitimate demand for, a demand which unless a radical change takes place in existing natural conditions, promises to continue indefinitely. Occasionally the real estate men resort to the boom methods of free car fare, free lunch and an auction. Possibly this means of selling realty is occasionally justified and no one is the worse for an investment under such circumstances, but if there should be an epidemic of the auction business, it would be bad for the market, possibly disastrous. Real estate should be bought in cool blood and not when the buyer's veins are throbbing with the new-born enthusiasm engendered by the hypnotic eloquence of the auctioneer. One is too apt to forget under such circumstances that the first "easy" payment must be followed by subsequent ones; it too often happens that the buyer at an "advance" does not materialize and there is default in consequence. In the lamented boom of the late 80's this sort of thing became so common that at last the majority of the buyers failed to make their payments and many a promising "townsite" went back to acreage. Hence we repeat that it is a matter to be thankful for that the auction sale of real estate is only sporadic, that buyers are using their judgment and buying on safe and sane principles. Nowhere in California is there promise of greater development in the near future than in the San Fernando valley. Its broad acres have laid undeveloped since the creation except in a few promising spots where water was obtainable and now that the supply of this vital factor is assured by the great Owens river project so rapidly being pushed to completion, it is difficult to exaggerate the possibilities. No other section adjacent to Los Angeles has been so kept back in the wonderful work of upbuilding in the past decade, in no other direction from that city than northward into this great valley is there a comparatively untouched stretch of over twenty miles of virgin territory tempting the capitalist and the home builder. But much as we desire to see this work of development go ahead, we prefer that it should be by the quiet and uninterrupted work of the intelligent investor, rather than the more brilliant but spasmodic performances of the brass band and free lunch promoters.

AN INTERESTING INCIDENT.

In a recent issue of the California Outlook, Mr. Thomas E. Gibbon tells an interesting incident of the fight waged for several years by the chamber of commerce and business men of Los Angeles in favor of a free harbor at San Pedro. In 1894 the Southern Pacific Railroad company had just completed the long wharf at Santa Monica, and Collis P. Huntington, the head of that corporation, was using all of his influence to divert to that place instead of San Pedro any appropriations which congress might make for a harbor on this part of the coast. Mr. Huntington had secured a petition signed by a large number of prominent shippers and business men of Los Angeles, asking congress to favor Santa Monica. The president of the chamber at that time was Mr. Dan Freeman; Gen. Charles Foreman was vice president, and Mr. C. D. Willard, secretary, while Mr. Gibbon was a prominent member of the board of directors. These gentlemen were all loyal supporters of the claims of San Pedro, Mr. Gibbon being a somewhat interested party, as he represented the Terminal Railroad company which was a connection of the Union Pacific which expected to use San Pedro as its Pacific terminus. Mr. Huntington had made a personal appeal to the directors of the chamber to declare in favor of a harbor at Santa Monica and the majority of the board seemed to have been won over to his side. The minority, or the supporters of San Pedro named above, petitioned for an election at which the question would be submitted to the full membership of the chamber for decision, and the election was to be held on a certain day. On the day previous to the election when the outcome was very much in doubt, Mr. Willard received a telegram from Senator Stephen M. White, in which he advised that the chamber decide in favor of Santa Monica. Upon receipt of the telegram, Mr. Willard called Messrs. Freeman and Gibbon into a private room. The depressing effect of the message upon the enthusiastic boosters for San Pedro may easily be imagined, as eSnator White was held in high regard. After discussing it briefly and dejectedly, silence ensued for a few minutes which was broken by Mr. Willard's rising from his chair near the open grate where a fire was blazing, remarking "Well, I guess we didn't get it," and dropping the telegram into the blaze!

When the election occurred next day the vote was 328 for San Pedro and 131 for Santa Monica. From that time forward the chamber of commerce used its great power to secure a harbor at San Pedro and its efforts were eminently successful.

THE SECOND STREET TUNNEL.

Letter from John N. Metcalf, Esq.

To the Board of Trustees,
Glendale, Cal.

Gentlemen:

Your resolution regarding the Second street tunnel was received and was an unanswerable argument in favor of the bore at that point instead of at First street, two blocks out of the line of traffic. I wish to thank you for your prompt action in the matter and assure you that we believe a Second street tunnel will at an early date be built even without the assistance of the city.

I wish to call your attention to the importance of carrying out the project of connecting up Brand and Glendale boulevards by a direct route through Edendale and thence in by Lakeshore to West Second street and Figueroa, the most direct route and the one furnishing the best grade into the city of Los Angeles from the San Fernando valley, Glendale and Tropico and the Glendale valley. I would suggest that your board appoint a live, active committee to act with committee appointed by the Glendale Valley Improvement Association and that a committee from Burbank and possibly from San Fernando valley take this matter up and make a strong issue of it and push that boulevard through to lasting benefit of both your valleys. The shorter and more direct route you have to the city the more valuable are your properties and the easier it will be for you to increase your population with the well-to-do class of citizens.

This grade is unquestionably a good one, as it was selected by the car line to Glendale and you know that is an easy grade. I understand Mr. Bert Richardson is ready to do more than his part toward rights of way and possibly in assisting to build the boulevard, I understand from the papers, that Edendale would like to have Allesandro street which runs parallel with the car line through that valley, cut down to a grade with the railway line. I am also informed that property owners desire Lakeshore avenue widened and paved. If you get even a simple, cheap bridge to begin with it means that you will eventually get a better one. I would suggest that you do not ask too much from the city of Los Angeles at this time but be satisfied with what you can get. I noticed from the report of the city engineer that it is planned to widen and pave San Fernando boulevard from Tropico on into the city. That, in my opinion, could never be the chief road from your section and the territory beyond you into the heart of Los Angeles. This road is crossed by various spur railroad tracks at the present time, and in the near future when manufacturing and industrial plants are greatly increased in the river bed, it will be a net work of railroad lines you will have to cross in order to get to the city by this route, making it dangerous and unsafe and slow and tedious for travel. Besides it will carry you through the traffic of North Main street or over the steep grade and tunnel at North Broadway. In our opinion, it would be better that this boulevard should not be completed if it would delay your better route through Edendale.

Your city engineer's report on the route would be of considerable value in making the fight.

The West Second Street Tunnel & Improvement Association will be pleased to lend any services in its power to assist you in the project.

I am,

Very truly yours,
JOHN N. METCALF.
Vice Pres. and Attorney West Second Street Tunnel & Improvement Assn.

THE ORIGIN OF LIFE. J.

(For the NEWS.)

Down through the ages this is a mystery which has puzzled mankind, and still forms a subject of the most absorbing interest to all inquiring minds. Great as are the advances made in man's knowledge of his environments, and numerous as are the secrets nature has yielded to the refined methods of modern research we are as much in the dark as to the origin of life as the ancient philosophers of early Greece.

It is quite certain that in the early history of the earth at a time when it was intensely hot, no life could have existed on our globe, but a study of the ancient rocks proves that as soon as the lowered temperature permitted its existence, life made its appearance, and continued in ever increasing abundance and complexity to the present time.

Less than fifty years ago it was universally believed that life could be spontaneously generated from decaying animal matter, and many experiments were performed in support of this belief. On the other hand more exact and careful experimenters proved that the teeming animalcular observed to be developed in the solutions under investigation owed their origin to pre-existing germs found everywhere floating in the common air.

They proved also that where all germs were destroyed by heat, and the air rigidly excluded, no life ever developed. It was a long fight, and lasted for twenty years or more, and although materialistic scientists would probably have been better pleased at a different result, there is today no fact in physical science more firmly established than that we know of no life but from pre-existing life, scientifically termed the principle of "Biogenesis." The great principle of organic evolution may be said to be based on Biogenesis, as it teaches that all existing life has been developed from one or a few original forms. Very few intellectual men who have carefully studied the theory of evolution can doubt that it is substantially true. But while we may grant all the claims of this great modern principle it does not help us in our search for the origin of life. It assumes a beginning in time, without attempting to account for it. The Materialists, however, are not satisfied, they still feel it necessary to affirm their belief in the generation of life from inorganic matter at some time in the remote past, under favorable conditions of which we can form no conception. They trace the history of animal and plant life back to the lowest form known on the earth, which is termed the Moneron. In his great work "The Evolution of Man," the celebrated German physiologist, Haekel, thus speaks of the Monera: "If we would undertake the difficult task of discovering the course of evolution of these twenty-two human ancestral stages from the very commencement of life, and if we venture to lift the dark veil which covers the oldest secrets of the organic history of the earth, we must undoubtedly seek the first beginning of life among those wonderful living beings which, under the name of Monera, we know as the simplest existing organisms, for their entire body to its fully developed and freely moving condition, consists merely of a small piece of structurless primitive slime or plasson, of a small fragment of that extraordinarily important nitrogenous carbon compound, which is now universally esteemed the most important material substratum of all the active phenomena of life." The Moneron is entirely homogoneous, of one consistency throughout, and is therefore an organism, without organs. It can only indeed be called an organism in so far as it is capable of exercising the organic phenomena of life, nutrition, reproduction, sensation, and movement. And these functions are the bases of all the activities and processes of the higher animals. One step in advance of the Moneron is the cell. And Dr. Gates says: "The cell can move parts of itself and is capable of locomotion; this is the basis of all movement in the higher animals brought about by bones and muscles. The cell can feel a stimulus and respond, and this is the basis of the sensory faculties of the higher animals, the cell can reproduce itself by segmentation, and this is the basis of reproduction in the higher animals. the cell on dividing inherits the actual qualities of its parent mass, and this is the basis of heredity; in short, the cell contains in simplest form, all of the activities to be found in man."

Having arrived at the lowest form of life on the earth, Haekel felt it necessary to attempt to account for its appearance. And notwithstanding the certainty, so clearly demonstrated, that no life is known except from pre existing life, still contends that life originally developed from inorganic matter without antecedent life. As Sir Oliver Lodge says: "Haekel discards the experimental facts of biogenesis in favor of a hypothetical and at present undiscovered kind of spontaneous generation. He assumes that the chemico-physical properties of carbon confer so peculiar a power on its albuminoid compounds that they develop into living protoplasm and that to reject some form of spontaneous generation is to admit a miracle." And in the last words of the sentence we have Haekel's true reason for holding on to spontaneous generation; he is an atheistic evolutionist. In this connection he says: "Since impartial study of the evolution of the world teaches us that there is no definite aim and no special purpose to be traced in it, there seems to be no alternative but to leave everything to "blind chance."

On the other hand, the theistic evolutionists, while granting all the requirements of the evolution theory affirm that the whole cosmos is an orderly system, in which every phenomenon has its aim and purpose, that there is no such thing as chance. And further that the first life on this planet appeared in strict conformity with the great principle of Biogenesis. Life from antecedent life, thus tracing for mankind a truly divine pedigree.

X-RAY.

Mid-May Festival — Committees Meet

Twenty-five or more members of the committees having the Mid-May Festival in charge met at Mr. Pulliam's establishment on Tuesday evening and started things going. For a first meeting it was a great success and those present were enthusiastic in regard to the prospects for making May 13th a red letter day in our history. The committees are not yet complete and it was the general opinion that additions should be made to them by the chairmen from time to time as circumstances may require, one of the principal objects being to secure the co-operation of citizens from all sections. Plans are as yet more suggestive than arbitrary, but it is the idea now that the barbecue and the main program take place in Glendale, probably on Fourth street, while the games and dancing will be at Verdugo Park, which has been secured for the occasion. With the experience of last year it seems that there should be no doubt but that that very successful affair should be very far eclipsed and with no greater expense.

The matter of having an exhibit at the Land and Products exposition was discussed. General regret was expressed that there would not be time to work up such an exhibit or it would undoubtedly have been taken up and put through successfully.

The meeting adjourned after agreeing that there should be a meeting of committee chairmen at the residence of Mr. F. J. Muehlman of Tuesday evening the 28th.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Regular meeting held Tuesday night, March 14th.

During the course of business the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, are heartily in favor of issuing bonds to the amount of $18,000 for the purpose of purchasing sites for a city hall and library and the erection of a city hall, and we pledge ourselves to use every honorable means in our power to carry the election for the above purpose on March 17th.

Mr. William Malcolm Logan left Glendale the 12th inst. for Portland, Ore. After a brief stay in Portland and surrounding country, Mr. Logan will go to Whitman county, Wash., where Mr. Logan has farming interests. Mr. Logan made his home while here with his sister, Mrs. Jack Nelson of 230 East Fourth street. He is also a brother of Mr. O. C. Logan, Jr., and Mr. John A. Logan of Tropico.

Jefferson Davis and His Nerves.

Jefferson Davis shrank from the sight of every form of suffering, even in imagination. When the "Babes In the Wood" was first read to him, a grown man, in time of illness, he would not endure the horror of it. His sympathy with the oppressed was almost abnormal, "so that," says Mrs. Davis, "it was a difficult matter to keep order with children and servants." All this shows that he was nervous, sensitive, which is a terrible handicap to a leader of men. He suffered always from nervous dyspepsia and neuralgia and "came home from his office fasting, a mere mass of throbbing nerves and perfectly exhausted." He was keenly susceptible to the atmosphere about him, especially to the moods of people, "abnormally sensitive to disapproval. Even a child's disapproval discomposed him." And Mrs. Davis admits that this sensitiveness and acute feeling of being misjudged made him reserved and unapproachable. It made him touchy as to his dignity also, and there are stories of his cherishing a grudge for some insignificant or imagined slight and punishing the author of it.—Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., in Atlantic.

Irving and His Money.

John Hare, the English actor, said that one of the failings charged to Irving's account was that of extravagance—that he did not know the value of money. It is quite true he did not know the value of money for himself, but he knew its value to others. He knew its value to the poor and helpless, and to these he gave with a lavish hand.

Once, not long before his death, playing a three nights' engagement in an unpretentious midland town, his habit was to drive nightly to the theater (a very short distance from his hotel) in the same dilapidated fly. The fare was a shilling. The conveyance was shabby, the driver old, poor and worn out. At the conclusion of the engagement, on entering his hotel, Irving said to the landlord, "Have you paid the cabman?" "Yes, Sir Henry." "What did you give him for himself?" "I gave him half a crown, Sir Henry." "Give him a sovereign," was the rejoinder; "he drives very well, and he doesn't drive often."

The Myth of the Doones.

How largely Mr. Blackmore drew upon his imagination for the story of "Lorna Doone" is made clear by F. W. Hackwood in his book, "The Good Old Times." There were, in fact, no Doones. The word was simply a local bogy, a modified form of "Dane," a memory of the faroff times when the viking invaders harried the land. "The only vestige of actuality discoverable is a faint tradition that a fugitive from the battle of Sedgmoor, to escape the hangings of Judge Jeffreys, appropriated the ruins of some wretched huts in recesses of the Badgworthy glen, now 'the Doon valley,' finding there a safe retreat in which he reared a considerable family, which managed to eke out a living by committing petty depredations in the district. The 'last of the Doones,' an old man and his granddaughter, are said to have perished in the snow during the winter of 1800."

Joy In Store For Some One.

Among the advertisements in a monthly magazine we find this:

For Sale or Exchange.—A fine young male bobcat and a female coyote; also a mandolin and pair of fieldglasses.

Such opportunities as this are not often offered. The fieldglasses most of us could manage to do without, but the male bobcat, the female coyote and the mandolin would go far to make life happy for any reasonable individual. All these are productive of music, and music gives joy to all rightly constituted persons. There are, of course, some people who cannot play upon a mandolin, but anybody can play upon a bobcat or a coyote. This fine chance to get a varied and interesting collection of musical instruments will undoubtedly bring many replies.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

The Laziest People.

There is no doubt that the Malays are among the laziest people in the world. Except in rare cases they will not take the trouble to learn when they are young, and afterward, if they have learned, they will not exert themselves to apply their knowledge to any object which require a sustained effort. That they possess effort is known to any one who has seen Malays engaged in any enterprise which savors of sport. They do not mind the trouble if there is only some risk and excitement in the work.—Times of Malaya.

A Marked Judge.

The descriptive reporter of a certain daily paper in describing the turning of a dog out of court by order of the bench recently detailed the occurrence as follows: "The ejected canine as he was ignominiously dragged from the room cast a glance at the judge for the purpose of being able to identify him at some future time."

Work of Providence.

"The man died eating watermelons," some one said to Brother Dickey.

"Yes, suh," he said. "Providence sometimes puts us in paradise befo' we gits ter heaven."—Atlanta Constitution.

Unspeakable.

"What would you think, daddy, if Algernon Nocash should suggest becoming your son-in-law?"

"Withdraw, my dear, while I think aloud."—Brooklyn Life.

A Long Credit.

The motto of the highland host that battled for the Stuart cause, which bonny Prince Charlie headed, apparently was that heaven helps those who help themselves liberally. They levied toll on the henroost, stable and, according to the author of "The Land of Romance," even on the pockets of the Covenanters.

At Swarthholm a party of these marauders overhauled the house of a tailor, and when one of them was about to cut up a web of homespun that had taken his fancy the good wife earnestly remonstrated.

"A day'll come when ye'll ha' tae pay for that," she solemnly assured him.

Scissors in hand, Donald paused. "An' when will she pe hafing to do that?" he asked.

"At the last day," said she.

"An' that will pe a fery goot long credit," the robber coolly returned. "She wass going to pe only taking a coat, but now she will pe taking a waistcoat as well."

A Mountain In the Sky.

Somewhere many miles away from this earth an enormous mountain twenty miles high is flying through space. The mountain is known astronomically as the planet Eros. The ordinary man has long taken it for granted that all the planets are more or less round in shape. The small planet Eros, however, is an exception to this rule. According to the latest astronomical information, it is a mere mountain in space, "without form and void," and as it turns upon its axis first one corner and then another is presented to view. These small worlds (few are over ten or twenty miles across) are not large enough to have sufficient gravity to draw their structure into symmetry and remain as when launched into space—mammoth meteorites. A tantalizing fact for astronomers is that Eros passed very close to us about Jan. 24, 1894—before the planet was recognized—and that quite so near an approach is not due again till 1975.

"The Mine's Blown Up."

I was sitting on the edge of my bed, loosening the heel of one of my rubber boots with the toe of the other, when suddenly through the stillness of the sleeping town, from the power house half a mile away, came a low and rising note, the great siren whistle in the power house. Almost fascinated, I listened as the great note rose higher and more shrill and died away again. One blast meant a fire in the town, two blasts fire in the buildings at the mine and three blasts, the most terrible of all, a disaster or trouble in the mine. Once more, after an interminable pause, the sound came again and once more rose and died away. I did not move, but there was a sudden coldness that came over me as once more, for the third time, the deep note broke out on the quiet air. Almost instantaneously the loud jingle of my telephone brought me to my feet. I took down the receiver. "The mine's blown up," said a woman's voice.—Atlantic.

Saying No.

The author of "Pat McCarty," a book of verse with a setting of prose, shows how naturally some of the Irishmen of Antrim dilute the wine of narrative with the water of verbiage. In the excerpt below—"The Way We Tell a Story"—the diluent is used with a particularly free hand:

Says I to him, I says, says I,
Says I to him, I says,
The thing, says I, I says to him,
Is just, says I, this ways.
I hev, says I, a gre't respeck
For you and for your breed,
And onything I cud, I says,
I'd do, I wud indeed.
I don't know any man, I says,
I'd do it for, says I,
As fast, I says, as for yoursel'.
That's tellin' ye no lie.
There's naught, says I, I wudn't do
To plase your feyther's son,
But this, I says, ye see, says I,
I says, it can't be done.

The Spectacled Bear.

The spectacled bear of Ecuador is so called because of a patch of white around each eye, which makes the animal look as though he was peering through a pair of great spectacles.

In size and general color the spectacled bear looks not unlike the American black bear. But its hair is very shaggy. At each side of the head is a white bar, which gives the animal the appearance of wearing a halter. But the most distinctive feature is the white around the eyes.

Attachment.

The schoolteacher was trying to illustrate the difference between plants and animals.

"Plants," she explained, "are not susceptible of attachment to man as animals are."

"How about burs, teacher?" piped a small boy who had passed the summer in the country.—Chicago News.

Schoolboy Blunders.

The University Correspondent recently offered a prize for schoolboy mistakes. Here are a few examples: "Mute, inglorious Milton"—these epitaphs are used by a writer who was envious of Milton's being poet orient. He finds "sermons in stones" expresses the same idea as Wordsworth's "the restless stone chat all day long is heard." Calvin was a noted scientist and peer, who died lately. Naples is an independent state in the north of India. Shakespeare made a mistake in mentioning Galen, who did not live until a hundred years after his time. The feminine of fox is foxhen. John Burns was the name of one of the claimants to the throne of Scotland in the reign of Edward I. The pyramids are a range of mountains between France and Spain. The three highest mountains in Scotland are Ben Nevis, Ben Lomond and Ben Jonson. Wolsey saved his life by dying on the way from York to London. When the English first landed in Australia the only four footed animal in the country was a rat. Monsoons are fertile gorges between the Himalayas.

When Bjornson Died.

Bjornson's son, in describing the last hours of his father, writes: "Now and then the bright flame of his humor flickered up. The doctor felt his pulse and said it was good. With his face beaming with humor he turned toward us and said, 'I am the first man to die with a good pulse.' He said one evening—and it seemed as if an old wise man was speaking with the weight of experience, 'Now I could write—yes, now I could write, for I have been in the realms of death and have felt the pain that attends death.' And when all of us thought that the indifference of death was upon him—my mother, who always gave him his food, which he would receive only from her, stood at the bedside with a brooch on her breast which she had worn at her confirmation—then he opened his eyes and looked at her. He smiled, lifted his hand and touched the brooch. This was the last sign to the outer world he was able to give."

A Cold Ride.

All through his life Senator Dolliver of Iowa had a horror of fast trains and possible railroad wrecks. Once he was on a train with Vice President Fairbanks.

Dolliver awoke in the middle of the night, and it seemed to him that the train was going at terrific speed. He climbed out of his berth and, arrayed only in his pajamas, started down the length of the train to find the conductor and ask him to order the train run at less speed. It was a cold night, but the senator did not mind that until the door of his car snapped shut and locked behind him and he found that the door of the next coach was also locked. He rode sixty-five miles locked out in the cold of the vestibule before he could wake up anybody to let him in. Mr. Fairbanks finally heard his cries for help and rescued him.—New York Tribune.

Necks and Legs of Animals.

With few exceptions there is a marked equality between the length of the necks and of the legs of both birds and quadrupeds, and whether they be long or short is determined chiefly by the place where the animal must go for its food. This is especially noticeable in beasts that feed constantly upon grass, in which case the neck has just a slight advantage in that it cannot hang perpendicularly down. Crocodiles, lizards and fish have practically no necks. Fowls that feed in the water also offer an example of this correspondence between the members, with the exception of swans and geese and some Indian birds, which gather their food from the bottom of pools and must have long necks for that purpose, while the short legs make it more convenient for them to swim.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

A Story Pepys Tells.

Pepys tells in his diary that in the reign of King Charles II. a customer bargaining with a London merchant for claret hired a confederate to "thunder (which he had the art of doing upon a deal board) and to rain and hail—that is, make the noise of—so as to give them a pretense of undervaluing their merchant's wines, by saying this thunder would spoil and turn them, which was so reasonable to the merchant that he did abate two pistolls per tun for the wine in belief of that."

A Mighty Difference.

Brougham used to tell an anecdote about the flight from Waterloo. Napoleon was greatly depressed. His aid riding beside him thought he might be sorrowing over the loss of so many old comrades at arms and tried to comfort him by saying that Wellington also must have lost many friends. "He has not lost the battle," was the reply.

Utterly Useless.

"Pa, what is a futile remark?"

"The one a man makes for the purpose of changing the subject when his wife complains because he has forgotten their wedding anniversary."—Chicago Record-Herald.

She Was Wise.

"I asked Miss Jimps to sing something, and she refused point blank. Is she grouchy?"

"No. She's trying to make a hit with you. Cheer up."—Toledo Blade.

A Sound Reason.

Mistress—Didn't you hear me calling, Jane? Jane—Yes'm, but you told me the other day never to answer you back.—Throne and Country.

Whatever enlarges hope will exult codrage.—Johnson.

The Change That Was Wrought.

The little man was explaining to his audience the benefits of physical culture. "Three years ago," he said, "I was a miserable wreck. Now, what do you suppose brought about this great change in me?" "What change?" said a voice from the audience. There was a succession of loud smiles, and some persons thought to see him collapse. But the little man was not to be put out. "Will the gentleman who asked 'What change?' kindly step up here?" he asked suavely. "I shall then be better able to explain. "That's right!" Then, grabbing the witty gentleman by the neck: "When I first took up physical culture I could not even lift a little man. Now (suiting action to word) I can throw one about like a bundle of rags." And finally he flung the interrupter half a dozen yards along the floor. "I trust, gentlemen, that you will see the force of my argument and that I have not hurt this gentleman's feelings by my explanation." There were no more interruptions.

Two Collars on a Dog.

Having bought a dog that he admired, a man undertook to buy a dog collar. The dog had a neck nearly as big as his head, and the dealer advised the man to buy two collars.

"What for?" said the man. "He's only got one neck, so I guess he can get along with only one collar, can't he?"

"Maybe so," said the man, so the man went away leading the dog by his new collar and chain. In less than a week he brought the dog back.

"I'm afraid I can't keep him," he said. "He is too obstreperous. I can't keep him tied up. His neck is the biggest part of him, and he is as strong as an ox, therefore it is a cinch for him to slip his collar off."

"That was why I wanted you to take two collars," said the dealer. "Put both on and fasten the chain to the back collar, and he can tug away all night without getting loose. He may commit suicide, but he won't get loose."—New York Sun.

Disappointed In Her.

"And so your father refuses to consent to our union."

"He does, Rodolphus."

The sad youth swallowed a sob.

"Is there nothing left for us, then, but an elopement?" said he.

"Nothing."

The girl was fond, but firm.

"Do you think, Clementine, that you could abandon this luxurious home, forget all the enjoyments of great wealth, banish yourself forever from your devoted parents' hearts and go west with a poor young man to enter a home of lifelong poverty and self denial?"

"I could, Rodolphus."

The sad youth rose wearily and reached for his hat.

"Then," said he, "you are far from being the practical girl I have all along taken you to be."

And with one last look around on the sumptuousness that some day he had hoped to share he sobbed and said farewell.—Browning's Magazine.

Had to Take His Own Medicine.

George Barr McCutcheon was waiting for a train in Chicago, and as he passed through the station he saw one of his latest best sellers displayed on the newsstand counter. He picked it up, wrote his name on the fly leaf and handed it to the boy behind the counter. He was moving away when the boy called excitedly:

"Hey, mister, come back here. You've got to buy this book 'cause you've spoiled it by writing your name in it."

"Yes, but did you see the name?" the author asked.

"That don't make no difference," the lad insisted; "nobody'll want to buy it now."

And, hearing his train called, Mr. McCutcheon was forced to pay real money for one of his own books.—Success Magazine.

Outdone.

Teacher—Now, boys, I want to see if any of you can make a complete sentence out of two words, both having the same sound to the ear.

First Boy—I can, Miss Smith.

Teacher—Very well, Robert. Let us hear your sentence.

Teacher—Very good.

Second Boy—Say, Miss Smith, I can beat that. I can make three words of it—wright, write right.

A rich old farmer once had his portrait painted. When the portrait was finished the old farmer looked at it, shook his head and said to the artist: "Very good. Very good, indeed. But there is one fault that you must remedy. Please make the right side of the chest bulge out. That is where I carry my wallet."

The Sad Part.

"Doesn't it make you sad," exclaimed the member of the Audubon society, "to see women wearing on their hats the feathers of the poor little birds?"

"It isn't the feathers that make me sad," replied the practical married man. "It's their bills."—Philadelphia Record.

Fox as a Gamester.

Charles James Fox, the English statesman, was even more notorious in the gaming world than he was famous in the world of politics. He had squandered $250,000 before coming of age. He became one of the most profligate gamesters of the vicious days in which he lived. Some of his finest displays in debate were sandwiched between excitement such as would unnerve most men who had no serious business on hand. Walpole has given a glimpse of a typical passage in this extraordinary man's life. He had to take part in the discussion on the thirty-nine articles in parliament on a certain Thursday. He had sat up playing hazard from Tuesday evening until 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. An hour before he had recovered $80,000 that he had lost and by dinner time, which was 5 o'clock, ended losing $55,000. On Thursday he spoke in the debate, went to dinner at past 11 at night; thence to a club, where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to a gambling house, where he won $80,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out on a journey to Newmarket.

Pirates and Strategy.

The virtuous island of Sark was not always so. When Edward III. was king, Sark was a haunt of pirates and wreckers. Sir A. Conan Doyle in "Sir Nigel" tells how they lived not upon the island, "but from what they can gather upon the sea around it. They are broken folk from all countries—justice fliers, prison breakers, reavers, escaped bondsmen, murderers and staff breakers who have made their way to this outland place and hold it against all comers." The merchants of Rye and Winchelsea fitted out an expedition against those scourges of the narrow seas. A landing was obtained by strategy. Leave was obtained to bury a supposititious dead sailor on the island, the burying party to come unarmed. But that apparent coffin was filled with weapons, and so was Sark cleansed of its evil inhabitants.—London Standard.

A Story of Mathews.

Charles Mathews one day previous to the period of his publicly proclaimed dire bankruptcy invited a friend to dine with him. The walnuts were washed down by some rare sherry.

"That's a delicious wine," his friend exclaimed. "It must have cost you a lot of money."

"It didn't cost me anything that I know of," the flighty comedian answered, with a shrug.

"You had it given to you, then?" the friend suggested.

"Oh, no," answered Mathews; "I bought it from Ellis, in Bond street."

"But he will charge you something for it?" the friend exclaimed in astonishment.

"I believe he does write something down in a book," Charles retorted gravely. "Let's have another glass, my boy."

When Tea Was Dear.

Those who grumble at the price of tea should turn for consolation to the records of its price in early times. At its first introduction into England, about the middle of the seventeenth century, tea fetched anything between 58 and £10 a pound, and though a fall in price quickly took place the East India company still had to pay over £4 for the two pounds of tea which it presented the king. However, even thus it is doubtful if the tea merchants got very fat, seeing that the importation of some 4,000 pounds in 1678 was enough to glut the market for some years.—London Chronicle.

English Injustice.

An Australian tourist traveling in the west of Ireland asked an old woman how far it was to the nearest town. She sadly looked at him, then sighed and said:

"It was five nice miles two years ago, but some English brute came over with chains and made it seven, and our hearts are broke walking it ever since. Bad luck to them!"

And she disappeared into the house, leaving him there.—Illustrated Bits.

Cramp in the Leg.

To those who suffer from cramp in the leg at night the following hint may be useful: When the cramp comes on take a good strong string—a long garter will do—wind it round the leg over the place that is affected and take an end in each hand and give it a sharp pull, one that will hurt a little. Instantly the cramp will depart, and the sufferer can return to bed assured it will not come on again that night.

A Mean Question.

"Yes, it was George's idea to give me a silver spoon for every birthday."

"How many has he given you?"

"Why, twenty-two."

"Why did he stop?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Cautious.

"I have a remarkable history" began the lady who looked like a possible client.

"To tell or sell?" inquired the lawyer cautiously.—Washington Herald.

A Dubious Saying.

He—They say that the face is an index of the mind. She—I don't know. It doesn't follow because a woman's face is made up that her mind is.—Boston Transcript.

It Takes Time.

"Has little Mrs. R. consoled herself over her husband's death yet?"

"Oh, no; no yet! You know what a long time these insurance companies take to pay!"

We must not sit down and look for miracles.—Eliot.

Uncommercial Liszt.

Artistic folk frequently have somewhat vague notions about business. Some of them are quite ignorant of it, others utterly indifferent to it and others yet hate the very name of it. One in the last named category was Liszt. He had returned from a successful tour, and Princess Metternich, the wife of the celebrated statesman and diplomatist, was questioning him regarding the concerts he had been giving abroad.

"I hear," she said, "that you did good business in Paris."

To which Liszt gave the tart reply, "I only played some music there. Business—that I leave to bankers and diplomatists."

To another lady the musical cleric gave a still more sarcastic answer. "Ah, Abbe," she sighed, "what a great fortune you would make if only you could be induced to go to America to play!"

"Madame," returned Liszt, "if you stood in need of that fortune, believe me, I would go at once."

The Names of Moses.

Moses of Scriptural fame is called by eight different names in various places in the Bible. Bathia, the daughter of Pharaoh, called him Moses because she drew him out of the water. Jochebed, his mother, called him Jekuthiel, saying, "I had hoped for him." Miriam, his sister, called him Jared because she had descended after him into the water to see what his end would be. Aaron called his brother Abi Zanuch because his father had deserted their mother. Amram, the father of Moses, called the boy Chabar because he was again reunited to the mother of the lad. Kehath, the grandfather of Moses, called him Abigdor because God had repaired the breach in the house of Jacob. The nurse of the grandfather of Moses called him Abi Socho because he was once hidden three months in the Tabernacle. All Israel called him Shemaiah because "in his days God heard their cries and rescued them from their oppressors."

Dot and Trousseau.

Dealing with the weaknesses of actors, some noted for meanness, a Paris contemporary relates a good story of Frederick Lemaitre, the celebrated actor, who was somewhat parsimonious. When his daughter was about to marry, Lemaitre agreed to provide the "dot" and the trousseau. "Dot," it may be observed, is the French equivalent for the English "dower" or Scottish "tocher."

When the notary came to complete the contract and was reading the terms Lemaitre said: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaitre has not need of a dot. M. Le Notaire, strike out the dot."

The prospective son-in-law was present, and he had the courage to reply: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaitre can easily clothe herself with the fame of her father. M. Le Notaire, pray strike out the trousseau."

The Cry of the Loon.

The cry of the loon is one of the strangest, weirdest sounds in nature. Those who have heard it can scarcely wonder that it has so often been woven into song and legend.

A blood red ring hung round the moon,
Hung round the moon. Ah, me! Ah, me!
I heard the piping of the loon,
A wounded loon. Ah, me!
And yet the eagle feathers rare
I, trembling, wove in my brave's hair.

Almost all writers who have attempted to describe the cry of this bird have likened it to unmirthful laughter. Thus Mr. Vernon Bailey, speaking of the sound, describes it as follows: "Only on the lonely lake in the heart of the woods do you get the startling thrill of the loon's wild cry—one clear, piercing note or a long, quavering, demoniacal laugh that to the timid suggests a herd of screaming panthers."

Four Kinds of Liars.

The late Sir Frederick Bramwell was famous both as a witness and arbitrator in engineering disputes. It is recalled that his brother, the late Lord Justice Bramwell, on giving advice to a young barrister told him to be careful of four kinds of witnesses—first, of the liar; second, of the liar who could only be adequately described by the aid of a powerful adjective; third, of the expert witness, and, finally, of "my brother Fred."

Extra Hazardous.

Beers—Poor Mrs. DeAlterres has always been unlucky in the selection of her husbands.

Townsend—Why do you say that?

Beers—Her first husband was a guide in the Adirondacks, her second was a baseball umpire, her third was a manufacturer of dynamite and her last was an aviator.—Chicago News.

A Generous Spirit.

"Henry, I want $2 this morning."

"What for?"

"Must I account to you for every penny I spend?"

"I don't insist upon knowing about every penny. When it's less than a nickel you can bunch it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wanted It Abbreviated.

Jeweler—What shall I engrave in it?

Customer—G. O. to H. L.

Jeweler—What's that, sir?

Customer (meekly)—George Osborne to Harriet Lewis; but just the initials, please.—Lippincott's.

His Sole Dread.

Hammond—Don't you dread the silent watches of the night? Martin—No; it's the cuckoo clocks that give me away.—Harper's Bazar.

Good intentions will never justify bad actions.

Have both been made commissioners,
Misfortune 'gainst the two will find
No sinecure position hers.

Now Jim and Frank bestir yourselves
And get the gold and silver moving,
An ample output of the stuff
Your quality of metal proving.

And see that money flows along
Untrammeled to the rest of us
And monetary stringency
No longer get the best of us!

Then here's a health to Jim and Frank
Our two joint high-commisioners,
Fate puts them in the foremost rank
And we are her petitioners,

Who pray that she will give them skill
To regulate the pesky stuff
And lubricate the public till
So all of us may have enough!

A GOOD IMITATION.

Citizens of Glendale are becoming accustomed to the sight of Indians, cowboys, soldiers and other personages supposed to be typical of the Wild and Wooly West, cavorting about the streets and adding picturesqueness to the scenery. They have learned by this time that while they are not quite the real thing they are very good imitations and that their business is to pose at the moving picture show having headquarters at Fourth and Orange street where they frequently give outdoor performances that prove quite attractive to the crowd of small boys and others who witness them.

GLENDALE.

By M. D. Chemberlin.

Glendale stands with hills surrounded,
A quiet inland glen.
Many homes which here are founded
Would lure an artist's pen.
Free from the city's noise and smoke,
With fragrance fresh and fair;
This you will find to be no joke,
Breathing her balmy air.
The streets out here are good and wide,
And nicely graded, too;
With tasty homes on either side,
Which makes a lovely view.
A home within this dale, I find,
Is just the thing to please,
To lift the care from off one's mind—
Come out and be at ease.

A Tabor Story.

Count Boyenta, Mme. Modjeska's husband, was arranging with Senator Tabor for Modjeska's first appearance in Denver, and the founder of dramatic art in Denver asked what parts she played.

"Well," said the count, "there is 'Mary Stuart.'"

"Who wrote it?" asked Tabor.

"Schiller," said the count.

"Is he a first class dramatist?" asked Tabor.

"Surely, surely," said the count. "He is most illustrious."

"Humph! Never heard of him," commented Tabor. "What else does she do?"

"'As You Like It,' 'Antony and Cleopatra,' 'Macbeth'"—

"Who wrote them?"

"Shakespeare."

"How's he? Good writer?"

"Excellent, excellent."

"Well," said Tabor ruminatively, "those fellows may be all right as authors, but they ain't well enough known to suit the people out here. What we want is something popular, something that everybody's heard of. I tell you what you do—you get her to give us something of Hoyt's!"

Fearful Fate of Ravaillac.

In these days when executions, if held at all, are mostly carried out in private, it is difficult for us to understand the feelings of savagery with which an old time mob witnessed a popular execution. Here is Bloundelle Burton's account—from "The Fate of Henry of Navarre"—of the scene when Ravaillac, the assassin of the king, had, after shocking tortures, been torn asunder by wild horses: "The executioner had begun to dismember him and was about to cast his remains into the second caldron when the vast crowd prevented him from doing so. They each required a portion of the body of the king's assassin, and most of them obtained one. That night many bonfires blazed in and around Paris, and in their midst were consumed pieces of Ravaillac's frame; on barn doors in other places were nailed similar scraps of his body, as hawks and owls and carrion crows were nailed as a warning to others of their breed."

Distinguishing Marks.

Willie—How do you manage to tell those twin sisters apart? Cecil—When you kiss one of them she threatens to tell her ma, while the other when kissed says she will tell pa.

Going Too Far.

Baldheaded Man (in the witness box)—The violent disorder was so terrible that it made my hair stand on end. Judge (severely)—Be good enough to remember that you are on oath!

It is not so much being exempt from faults as having overcome them that is an advantage to us.

Miss Ethel M. Reynolds has entered upon a course of study with James E. McBurney, teacher of art with studio in the Walker theater building, Los Angeles. Miss Reynolds will study portrait painting. She is unusually talented in this line and we predict a bright and successful future for her.

George Valdez and family of Los Angeles, have purchased a lot on Gardena avenue in the Richardson tract and will soon erect a beautiful home on the property. Temporarily they are staying in the Bancroft home. It is rumored that the owners of the Richardson tract expect soon to start the erecting of eighteen fine homes on their property. They will be built to sell.

R. E. Murdock of Los Angeles, spent some time at the Bungalow Studio Tuesday. This was Mr. Murdock's farewell visit to Tropico before leaving for an extended tour of the Orient. Incidentally it may be mentioned that very recently Mr. Murdock came into a fortune of about $210,000. Previous to this extremely good luck Mr. Murdock was one of the most prominent photograph operators in Los Angeles.

Revival services are being conducted in the Tropico Methodist church. This week there has been a different speaker every evening. Next week the evangelists, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ireland of Kansas City, Mo., will assist the pastor. Rev. Ireland has few equals as a chorus leader and is also an able preacher. Mrs. Ireland plays the Melophone with great effectiveness and sings in a rich contralto voice. They are religious, refined and capable and have been having great success. In connection with the services throughout next week there will be four cottage prayer meetings each day from 9:30 until 10 o'clock. The meetings will be held in the different sections of the city. The boys and girls meetings, conducted by the pastor have been quite successful.

TROPICO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

A meeting of the Tropico Chamber of Commerce was held in the temporary meeting place on San Fernando road Tuesday evening. The committee on permanent rooms asked for further time. The following committee on membership was appointed: E. W. Richardson, W. R. Light and E. L. Young.

The members decided to hold an entertainment as soon as possible, which will be held as a sort of "get-together" affair. The following committee will have complete charge of the affair: C. A. Bancroft, H. D. Robertson, George H. Friedgen, F. R. Jones and C. H. Cushing.

The secretary of the Chamber was requested to communicate with the Pacific Electric railway company and ask that the name of Tropico be put on the cars running between this place and Los Angeles, as a great deal of delay is caused to strangers who wish to come to this place. The secretary was also requested to ask the Southern Pacific Railway company to beautify and improve the depot grounds.

Many other matters of interest were disposed of and now that the town is incorporated the Chamber of Commerce is going to take a lively interest in civic affairs.

It was decided that this chamber communicate with the Chamber of Commerce of Glendale and ask that the chamber of the Jewel City work in conjunction with the Tropico people in anything that will be of interest and to the advancement to the valley at large, and that the two chambers work hand in hand whenever it is possible.

In letters received from Dr. E. H. Thompson of Burbank, who left in December, for a six months' European trip, the doctor states that he and family have been enjoying themselves to the utmost, but is now down to good, hard work, studying. The doctor is now in Vienna, Austria, but expects to return in June.

Mr. Wm. T. Johnson, formerly of Los Angeles, is now engaged in business in San Francisco, having purchased a neat little delicatessen store in that city and is highly encouraged at the rate business is increasing. Mr. Johnson makes aspecialty every Saturday of "Beans," and from a letter recently received, all his friends are cordially invited to sample them, as he has a good supply on hand.

The social held at the West Glendale M. E. church on Friday last was certainly a success, both socially and financially. There was an unusually large gathering of people, both old and young. Each one present was obliged to tell an Irish story, sing a song, etc., or take their medicine like a man, that is, pay a fine, and as a consequence many a hearty laugh was indulged in. Miss Esther Schremp delighted the audience with two excellent recitations and was heartily encored. Refreshments of coffee, potato chips, ginger bread, were served.

SIXTH STREET PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Sixth street school held its regular meeting for this month on Friday last. A number of important business matters were transacted. After a discussion of the advisability of securring the election of a woman on the school board in the coming election in April, it was decided to ask the women of Glendale to work to support such a measure. Dr. Jessie A. Russell was the unanimous choice of those present and as such received their endorsement. Mrs. H. G. Dominy, who presided over the meeting, appointed Mrs. L. A. Wood, Mrs. Theo Mack and Mrs. Wayne P. Snow to draw up resolutions of endorsement.

The address which had been scheduled for that day was postponed until next month. Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, who was appointed to conduct the question box, did so in her usual enthusiastic manner. Every woman in the room took part in the animated discussion following each question, making the meeting one of the most successful of the year. After the adjournment the serving of dainty refreshments by Mrs. Grosvenor and Miss Waite completed the enjoyments of the afternoon.

NURSING AS A CAREER, A WORLD-WIDE CALL—FREE TRAINING PROVIDED.

It is said that nursing is one of the most inviting fields of human service and that its financial return surpasses any other occupation open to young women. It develops all the native graces of womanhood and leads the way to positions of trust and influence. The demand for more nurses is a world-wide call.

The Philadelphia School for Nurses, located in Philadelphia, Pa., has undertaken to meet this demand by offering free scholarships to young women in all parts of the country. Room, board, laundering, incidental expenses, special financial assistance and railroad fare home on completion of the course, are provided. Length of course two years. Also a special short course and a home study course for those who must quickly prepare for self support.

The Philadelphia School for Nurses is a benevolent institution conducted without hope of gain or profit, in the interest of ambitious young women. Readers of this paper can get full information by writing the school at once.
